STOLE FOR HIS WIFE.

A Case in Which the Secretary of the Navy Had to Act.

Secretary Herbert has been called upon to act in a case presenting special features of pathos and hardship. August M. Cabral, ship's cook on the cruiser Raleigh, at Norfolk, was recently tried by court-martial for the theft of a gold watch, valued at $20, the property of Daniel Atkins, ship's cook.
He pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to be confined for a year, to lose $354, nearly all his pay during that period, and then to be dishoncrably discharged.

The police of Anacostia are busy just now in efforts to enforce the law requiring people to have a license for their dogs. The dismal howl and sharp yelp of the members of the canine tribe which infest Hillsdale, have given the policemen clues as to where the majority of the disturbers of the peace are to be found. Complaints of citizens regarding the nightly serenades rendered gratis have caused the officers to make A Pathetic Statement.

his defense Cabral submitted the following written statement in mitigation of

I came to the Raleigh with very little money, and I left behind me in New York my wife and little baby, nine months old. At the first issue of monthly money I drew 115. I could not get more under the regulail5. I could not get more under the regula-tions, which require a month's pay to be retaired on the books. I sent nearly all this money home, as my wife was sick and ailing. I tried to borrow money from the men, but could not. They had no money. The next month I drew $20, which I sent home; my wife was getting worse, and doc-tor's bills and rent accumulating. She kept writing me for money, as she was sick, and tor's bills and rent accumulating. She kept writing me for money, as she was sick, and the baby also began to sicken. I could not get money. I knew she needed it. My child needed it. I was desperate. The watch was in the chest in the galley. I was desperate; in an evil moment I took it to help my wife and child. I did not intend to keep it. I intended nawning it and when I could get and child. I did not intend to keep it. I in-tended pawning it, and, when I could get morey, redeem it and return it. I pawned the watch in New York, was detected and confined. Now my service of fourteen years is as nothing. My character is ruined. My wife is ill, in desperate circumstances, with no money. My baby is dead.

The Secretary's Action. In reviewing the proceedings of the court, Secretary Herbert says: "The statements contained in the writter defense of the accused concerning the sickness of his wife and child and the death of the latter are borne out by original letters and a copy of a telegram from the wife, and further by original letters from J. W. Brown, a real estate agent in New York. Two only of the seven members of the ccurt, however, have recommended clemency, in consideration of previous good character, and of the fact that the wife and child of the accused were sick and constantly appealing to him for money, and that these circumstances may have moved the accused to commit the offense.

"The sentence inflicted by the court is not

The sentence inflicted by the court is not believed to be excessive for the offense of which the accused has been found guilty, but in view of the above, and particularly of the pitiful circumstances surrounding the and of the great temptation to which the accused was in consequence subjected, the proceedings, finding and sentence of the court are approved, but that portion of the from the service in accordance with the terms of his sentence. August 13, 1894. The Marlboro' agricultural fair promises to be a paying investment this year unless all signs fail. A large amount of money is being expended in putting the buildings in good condition. All of the buildings have been whitewashed and painted. The track is being improved and will make much faster time than last year. The fair will be held from August 21 to 24, the week before the fair in Baltimore county. The Fair Association has among its stockholders some of the most prominent business men of Washington. They naturally feel an interest in the success of the association and have in every way assisted the board of directors in their efforts. The association has $25,000 invested in the grounds. The fair grounds are situated on the Ealtimore and Potomac railroad, the depot being about 400 yards from the grand stand and exhibition hall. The fair is given each year under the auspices of the Prince George's Agricultural Fair Association, and this will be the second exhibition. The president of the association is Dr. Richard S. BOSTON VIEWS ON THE BILL.

How the Action of the House is Re garded at the Hub. A special dispatch to The Evening Star dated Boston, August 14, says: The leading Boston papers make the following com ments on the tariff bill this morning: Herald (ird.)-As we measure the matter, the House was "bluffed" into throwing lown its cards when it really held the better hand of the two. If it had coolly and courageously played its cards for all they were worth it might have won the game, or at the lowest have forced the Senate to divide stakes.

Globe (dem.)—The Globe has four predictions to venture this morning. First, the democratic disappointment with the Senate tariff bill will be only momentary. Second, the prosperity of the country will quickly rally and mount higher than ever it inount-ed during the operative period of any other tariff in the history of the republic. Third, no general readjustment of customs duties will be effected again for at least ten years. Fourth, the several glaring defects of the new law can and will be remedied by separate acts without annoyance to the gen-eral business of the country.

Journal (repub.)—The Senate tariff bill may be succinctly describe as "a bill by the trusts of the trusts for the trusts," Its leading provisions have been shaped and dictated by the men who control those vast aggregations of capital which the demoratic party in its platforms professes to hold in deep detestation.

Post (dem.)—Bad as the Senate bill is in the few points over which the contest has been waged, it is yet, when contrasted with McKirleyism, a boon to the struggling with McKilleyism, a bood to the struggling industries of the country. It will not fail to give relief, it will be accepted as far as it goes as a step toward the redemption of the pledges of the democratic party.

One little article on his person was overcoked by the custodians in searching him-large locket attached to his watch chain. When the guards left him he managed to squirm around so as to reach and unfasten the locket. This contained a small, sharp knife, with which he proceeded to cut his bonds. He soon parted the leather hand-cuffs and next broke the leather strap tied around his feet. Pardridge jumped up to his window and yelled down at the crow1: "I am Ed. Pardridge; you know me. They are trying to rob and kill me. I'll give $500 to the man who will get my lawyer. For God's sake help me.'

Attacks a Keeper. As he continued his entreaties he grew more and more excited and said: "If none of you will get my lawyer for $500 I will give you $600, $700, $800, $000, $1,000. Hurry up, for the love of heaven. They are going to kill me. I'll give any one half my fortune if he will get my lawyer."

The attention of the guards was attracted by the fearful yelling and two of them went to the "plunger's" room to subdue him. The latter, when he heard steps in the hall. made ready to brain some of his captors. He stood with a heavy wooden chair uplifted in his hands. As the door opened and the head of the first guard appeared he brought his weapon down with a crash. The guard dodged just in time to escape the blow. Pardridge was then bound in his were a few yells and a series of warwhoops which could be distinctly heard all over the house. This stopped soon, and he mumbled, talked to himself and then fell into a sullen stupor and went to sleep. Superintendent Summerville was not in-clined to be reticent about his patient yesterday. "Yes," said he, "Mr. Pardridge is confined here now and will be forced to remain with us for some time. His trouble now seems to be due more to a temporary derangement than anything else." Must Produce Him in Court. Yesterday afternoon Attorney J. E. Deakin appeared before Judge Dunne with a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to compel T. Summerfield, manager of the home, to produce Pardridge in court. The petition recited that the noted plunger was being held a prisoner against his will. Mr. Dea-kin handed the court a crumpled scrap of paper, on which was written:

"Go to Judge Prendergast and get me out of here at once. Give the bearer of this (Signed) "ED. PARDRIDGE " Mr. Deakin, who is a law partner of Judge Prendergast, explained that this note had been picked up by a man who saw it thrown from a window of the home. The note was taken to Judge Prendergast's office and turned over to Mr. Deakin. Judge Dunne granted the writ and made it returnable at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Energetic Washington. E. G. Dunnell in the New York Times. Unless the Congress hurries, it will be here when the Knights of Pythias arrive to enjoy their annual encampment. That great assembly is to begin on August 27, and Washington is making preparation for it with the energy that it has become famous for in arranging for assemblies of multitudes of people. Two years ago the Grand Army of the Republic had its encampment here and it was the most successful and enjoyable one for the old soldiers that they have ever held. While the numbers promising to attend the Knights of Pythias encampment will not be so large as came to the Grand Army gathering, and will not, as did that assembly, disturb the railroad n ovements in all directions for weeks, it will be large and its parade will be much handsomer than the parade of the old sol-diers. The Uniformed Rank of the Pythian order is picturesque, and there will be plenty of it here. Pennsylvania avenue is to be elaborately decorated for the occasion of the formal parade, and permission has been given to illuminate the dome of the Capitol for a night festival. There has been Capitol for a night restival. There has been no el-borate illumination of the great dome since electricity came into use as an illuminating agent. There have been plenty of examples of what can be done with wires examples of what can be done with wires and colored lamps to guide the decorators in making the illumination of the dome semething worth looking at. Banquets, hall gatherings, excursions, concerts, the ever-lasting music of brass bands, badges omni-present and bewilderingly various, Pythian literature, the lingo of the order and the enthusiasm of crowds will make of the week one unbroken festival, and will make of the week that follows it, if the Congress be away by that time, a week of rest that all will enjoy unbroken by any suggestion of street music other than that of the peri-
